

Since 1870, the art of the Venetian Terrazzo in a contemporary key

We create custom precast Terrazzo projects Crafted to last

Our roots lie in the Venetian sown shops. Historical documents from the mid-nineteenth century testify to a continuity that makes us among the oldest entities still active in the sector.

Today we express this experience in the Precast Bespoke Cancian: large-format custom slabs that maintain the artisanal identity of the traditional Venetian Terrazzo and meet the needs of contemporary construction sites.

We work with architects, contractors, marble workers and entities active in high-end retail and hospitality and accompany each project from technical definition to final installation.

A clear path, from idea to pose

Venetian Terrazzo originates from natural materials and from a tradition based on the recovery and transformation of raw matter. For us, sustainability means bringing this origin into the present, optimizing processes to reduce waste and improve the durability of surfaces.

We start from the architect's concept and translate it into a technically feasible solution through continuous dialogue on feasibility, materials and technical details. Before production begins, we define and verify the aesthetic result through dedicated sampling, ensuring chromatic and material consistency.

Depending on the project, we produce customized slabs in the factory with controlled uniformity and stability, or we execute traditional Terrazzo directly on site with our specialized in-house teams. In both cases, we support the execution phase with technical assistance to ensure full consistency with what has been defined in the design stage.

Structured technical and design support

Cancian services are designed for architects, contractors and companies operating in high-end hospitality and retail who choose Venetian Terrazzo and are looking for a partner capable of supporting the entire process.
